5 Twenty-four of Vermont's most prominent makers will 6 open their studio doors at the 47th Annual Putney Craft Tour this 7 Thanksgiving weekend, beginning Friday, Nov. 28.
8 Glassblowers, potters, jewelers, painters, sculptors,
9 stained glass artisans, woodworkers, photographers, and award-
10 winning wine and cheesemakers welcome visitors to their studios

11 to discover, ask questions, and snag that one-of-a-kind gift direct 12 from the crafter who made it.

13 "The opportunity to experience the uniqueness of the 14 number and the variety of craftspeople and artists in a small rural 15 environment is the real draw of such tours," says glassblower
16 Robert Burch (#19), one of the founders of the tour.

17 Burch is an entertainer, glassblower, and teacher, and his 18 studio is alive with demos all weekend long. For him, the tour is 19 a family affair, with both his daughter and son on the tour. His 20 daughter, Caitlin Burch, (#20) specializes in hand-blown glass
21 and lampwork jewelry, and his son Ryan Burch (#18), focuses on 22 functional ceramics.

23 Another ceramic artist, Joshua Gold (#8), concentrates on 24 wood- and soda-fired pottery. He describes his work as "the 25 search and discovery of the endless combination of dances that 26 express elegance and grace."

27 Additional craft tour glass artisans include Julia Brandis
28 (#16), whose work features nature-inspired stained glass lamps
29 and panels, while glassblower Joshua Letourneau (#15)
30 specializes in freestyle hand-blown glass.

31 Several painters on the tour include Lindsay Saunders
32 (#4), who will showcase original oil paintings, prints and greeting 33 cards. Judy Hawkins (#12), one of the original artisans on the 34 tour, is inspired by the Vermont landscape, especially interpreting 35 the mood and feeling of weather, skies, and water. Hawkins's
36 studio is in Westminster West, near painter Nancy Calicchio's
37 studio (#10). Clicchio's work is deeply inspired by the Vermont
38 landscape as well.

39 Also in the same area is silver jewelry designer Jeanne 40 Bennett (#13) who primarily works in silver. She also teaches 41 jewelry-making to students of all ages, both in her home and at 42 local schools. Blake Johnson of Heartspark Arts (#9) joined the 43 tour last year. He makes furniture and wall art, useful wooden 44 objects and sculpture.

45 Another early tour member, Green Mountain Spinnery
46 (#3), is chiefly engaged in machine spinning and dyeing of yarn
47 from New England fleece. Since its founding as a cooperative in 48 1981—the Spinnery has marketed sweater patterns designed by 49 Putney artists to go with their array of many-colored yarns.

50 Another stop is the internationally award-winning Parish
51 Hill Creamery (#14). Peter Dixon and Rachel Fritz Schaal make 52 cheese while the cows are outside grazing the hill farm pastures
53 of Elm Lea Farm. Their cheese is natural and represents something 54 that is an expression of the land, the animals, the milk — and 55 their hands.

56 Susan Jarvis's studio (#7) is on the first floor of historic 57 Overhills. Jarvis says she "transforms the histories and stories of 58 objects, people, and places into beautiful, complex paintings,
59 sculptures, and custom mosaic tilework." She will have ceramic 60 tiles, sculptures, holiday ornaments, and oil paintings for 61 purchase.

62 Several artists will be together at Pierce's Hall, 121
63 Putney Falls Rd., East Putney, including Mucuy Bolles's of 64 Mestiza Pottery (#22), Mayan inspired ceramics; Laurie Alberts's
65 (#23) oil paintings, prints, and cards; Allison Korn's (#24),
66 handcrafted silver jewelry; and Creations by Kerrianne (#21), 67 featuring needle-felted and soft-sculptured wool dolls and 68 animals.

69 The tour welcomes new artisans every year, and this year
70 the tour welcomes Annie Quest (#11), who specializes in 71 assemblages, silver jewelry, and prints; Nick Ellison (#5), who 72 focuses on large format darkroom and alternative process
73 photography and film; silversmith JaJa Laughlin (#6), who makes 74 rings, bracelets, necklaces, brooches, and earrings; assemblage
75 artist Kathy Kemp (#17), who transforms found objects and 76 reclaimed materials into layered compositions that bridge past
77 and present; and photographer Kate Dodge (#2).

78 Tour-goers can start at Putney Winery & Spirits at 8
79 Bellows Falls Rd. (Rte. 5) in Putney, where info, an exhibit, and

80 tour maps are available, or go to putneycrafttour.com for details
81 and map.
