6 Attorney General Charity Clark will host a free criminal
7 record clearing clinic on Thursday, Jan. 15, with appointments
8 available from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.
9 Attorneys from the Attorney General's Office will offer
10 free assistance with petitions for Vermont-specific "qualifying" 11 criminal convictions and dismissed charges. Vermonters must schedule appointments in advance by calling the Attorney

12 General's Office at 802-828-3171 or emailing

13 AGO.Info@vermont.gov by Tuesday, Jan. 6.

14 Eligible participants will be given an in-person

15 appointment at the Brooks Memorial Library in Brattleboro on the 16 day of the clinic.

17 Sealing a record allows an individual to wipe from their 18 criminal record specific convictions and dismissed charges after a 19 certain period of time has passed, including records relating to 20 contact with the criminal justice system, like arrest or citation, 21 arraignment, plea or conviction, and sentencing.

22 Under Vermont's updated law, most misdemeanors,
23 various nonviolent felony offenses, and all dismissed charges can 24 be sealed. The free clinic will focus on sealing criminal charges 25 and convictions from Windham County, and will be open to the 26 public by appointment only.

27 "For many years, my office has assisted Vermonters with 28 clearing old criminal records that are holding them back from 29 securing stable housing, getting better jobs, and participating 30 fully in their communities," Clark said in a news release. "These 31 clinics are a way for us to help Vermonters who have paid their 32 debt to society and stayed out of trouble get a fresh start and 33 strengthen the community as a whole. I want to thank Windham
34 County State's Attorney Steve Brown, Interaction (formerly Youth 35 Services), and the Brooks Memorial Library for their assistance in 36 hosting this clinic."

37 More information on sealing and expungements is

38 available at Vermont Legal Aid's website at 39 vtlawhelp.org/expungement.
