6 In September and October of 2025, artist Evie Lovett
7 worked with students in the Art in the Neighborhood program, to 8 create print images using a photographic process known as 9 “cyanotype.”

10 The project, titled “Out of the Blue,” referenced the blue 11 monochromatic prints resulting from this simple sun-printing process and the element of surprise in their creation. Students

12 also wrote poems based on their prints. The prints are currently 13 on display at Brooks Memorial Library through the month of 14 January.

15 Art in the Neighborhood is a program that provides 16 tuition-free art classes to students in four affordable housing
17 communities in Brattleboro. Artist and state Rep. Mollie S. Burke 18 (D, Windham-8) founded the program in 2008 and continues as 19 its executive director.

20 The prints on display at the library represent the work of 21 students from Moore Court, Ledgewood Heights, Westgate
22 Housing, and the Daly Shoe Building.

23 Lovett is a Putney-based artist who says she is dedicated 24 to connecting people to each other and to place through art,
25 story, and active participatory engagement. She was a 2022–23
26 Climate Change Artist in Residence at the Brattleboro Museum &
27 Art Center. Her collaborative public art sculptures include “Ask 28 the River” at the Brattleboro Transportation Center.
