4 Gordon Clark and the Vermont Comedy All Stars return
5 to Next Stage Arts, 15 Kimball Hill, for a live stand-up comedy
6 showcase Friday, March 27. Doors open at 6:45 p.m., with the 7 show starting at 7:30 p.m.

8 The lineup will be:

- 9 • Zoe Bernstein, a local comic, has shared the stage with 10 nationally touring comedians. Midwest-born and nationally
11 experienced, she has performed at the Laugh Factory Chicago

12 and opened for headliners such as Amy Miller, Jay Larson, and 13 Yamaneika Saunders, according to promotional materials.
14 Bernstein also produces a monthly themed comedy show at 15 Lincolns in Burlington.

16 • Tracy Dolan, a Burlington-based comedian, draws
17 humor from her romantic misadventures and parenting
18 experiences. She has performed at the Boston Women in Comedy
19 Festival, NYC’s She-Devil Comedy Festival, and has opened for 20 Gary Gulman, Hari Kondabolu, and Cameron Esposito.

21 • Mo Doukhi, originally from Lebanon and raised as a 22 Palestinian refugee, “brings a darkly humorous perspective paired 23 with charm,” having opened for national acts at the Vermont
24 Comedy Club.

25 • Eric Dreibratt, currently based in Brooklyn, combines 26 his comedic and puzzling skills, having performed at the 27 Edinburgh Fringe Festival and hosted shows from Burlington to 28 New Orleans.

29 The show is produced and hosted by Gordon Clark,
30 director of the nonprofit Vermont Comedy All Stars, which has 31 produced over 100 shows across Vermont since 2020. Clark, who 32 bills himself as “Vermont’s oldest regularly performing 33 comedian,” performs statewide.

34 Tickets are available at nextstagearts.org — $12 in 35 advance, $15 at the door.
